Franckiewicz not to seek re-election as Bay mayor

/ BY D.C. HARVILL

Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Franckiewicz Jr. announced Wednesday that he will not run for re-election.

In an announcement released late Wednesday afternoon, Franckiewicz stated, "After long and deliberate consideration, I have decided not to seek re-election.... This decision is naturally a difficult one considering how exciting the job has been. However, I think it is the best decision for me for several reasons."

Among the reasons he gave for the decision is that, with outstanding efforts of the city's employees and support of the community's people, his administration has been able to accomplish the primary goal he promised when running for the post-"four years of new attitudes and and new standards of excellence." "I am proud to have played a role in this progress. Now it is time for me to pursue new career challenges, confident that a successor will continue the progress of the last four years," he said.

To date, two candidates have qualified for the mayor's race, City Clerk Edward Favre and former mayor Larry Bennett.

"If I entered the race with the two formally announced candidates, it could seriously divide the community at a time when we need to continue pulling together," he said. He offered as a third reason for his decision a desire to reestablish his personal life. "The demands of the mayor's job make that too difficult a task,' he said.

He also indicated that he might better take advantage of opportunities on a state level by not running. He would not elaborate, however.

"When I announced for mayor in 1985, I pledged to put the city's day-to-day operations in order, to organize and motivate the city's workforce, to make city government more efficient, to provide full municipal services to the annexed area, to support public education aggressively, and to improve the image of the community. I am pleased to have met these commitments.

He lists among his administration's accomplishments, reorganization of city government, reducing the number of departments by 20% and the number of employees by 10%; development of a civil service system and consolidation of tax collection operations with the

Also an increase in the city's water supply capability for the first time in 25 years, completion of the first major street renovation program in 20 years, provide sewer, water, drainage and paved streets to the area annexed, but unserved since 1967, renovation of every major city building, including the historic restoration of City Hall.

He also said he started literacy training for the city's employees, created the "Warm Neighbor Program" to help defray cost of utility bills for low-income citizens.

"In the near future, I will be pursuing other career options. I am eager to stay in the public sector, or in a related field with a private concern in this area. I look forward to serving in an elected capacity again if the opportunity arises.

"A decision like this is never made without some misgivings.

I regret that not running will disappoint many friends and supporters. I am deeply grateful for the opportunity they gave me to serve as mayor. I hope that they will understand my personal reasons for the decision and will continue their BAY MAYOR—Page 5A

Bay-Waveland school administrative changes set for next session

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

The consolidation of Bay Senior High and Bay Junior High will cause some adminstrative changes in the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District.

The personnel changes were made at a school board meeting Monday and will take effect the next school session.

Bay Junior High principal Woody Alliston next session will become a half-day assistant principal at the combined school. Gale McRaney, now assistant principal at the junior high, will also become a halfday assistant principal at the combined school, Superintendent Roger Oge' said.

The administrative moves will not affect high school principal Roger James, and assistant principal Billy Rhodes, Oge' stated.

The combining of the senior and junior high will enable the postion of Chapter I system to create a Middle School consisting of grades 4, 5, and 6 at the old Junior High location on Carroll Avenue.

The facility actually was the high school before the construction of the facility on Blue Meadow Road.

Betty Diboll, president of the school board said, "Both Allison's and McRaney's time will be shared in the new administrative position for the junior high students with each teaching three periods a day."

A principal for the Middle School is now being sought and the position requires special credentials, Diboll stated.

Other adminstrative changes to be made include: —Dr. Betty Jones being named as director of curriculum for the entire system.

- Debbie Cox assuming the coordinator.

- Clevand Williams being named director of health, physical education and athletics.

Jones will move to the new position from coordinator of Chapter I. Cox had served as assistant coordinator.

Diboll reported a lot of planning between the school board and Dr. Oge' had gone into the changes and indicated the entire system will benefit from the changes.

Other positions without change include: - Robert Magee, assistant superintendent. - Rodney Fisher, principal at North Bay Elementary. _ James Baldree, principal at Waveland Elementary

— W.J. Cameron, administrative principal.

Fire alarm alerts couple to early morning blaze

A smoke alarm alerted a Bay St. Louis couple in time for them to escape unharmed from their burning home Saturday merring and quick response by sponse by morning and quick firefighters saved the home from structural damage.

Beth and Michael Mitchell were sleeping early Saturday when they were awakened by the smoke alarm. "When I woke up there was smoke in the room. I opened the bedroom door and saw it was worse in the living room than it was in here. So we scooped up some stuff and went out through the bedroom window," Michael Mitchell said. After exiting the house, Beth Mitchell went to a neighbor's home and called the fire department.

Fire damage was contained to the enterior of the house, two front bedrooms, the living room and a hallway where the fire is believed to have originated. Smoke damage was extensive throughout the house.

The hands on a partially at 3:17. The call to the fire department was received shortly after that time.

Bay Fire Chief Andrew Lizana, investigating the cause of the blaze Monday said, apparently the fire began because of a ruptured natural gas line connected to a heater in the hall. The heater had been in the house when the house was moved to the lot and renovated, Mitchell said.

Mitchell said he does not know the age of the house. But a beaded double ceiling revealed by the fire indicates the building dates from about the turn of Lizana credits quick response by the first firefighters at the scene, Gary Maurice, Arthur Farve and Rodney Aguzin, with saving the house.

"The firsts on the scene did a real good job getting in and smothering the fire. If it had got to the outside of the house it would have been a much worse fire," Lizana said.

Artists Warner, Richards to be featured Sunday on Channel 4 program

BY DENA BISNETTE

A pair of artists, Jeanne Warner of Bay St. Louis and Charles Richards of New Orleans, can often be seen painting together on Hancock County's beaches. On Sunday at 10:30 p.m., they can be seen on Bill Elder's Journal on Channel 4.

Warner and Richards have different backgrounds but met several years ago through one of Richards' models. Richards now visits Bay St. Louis to paint with Warner, whose style, like his, resemblez the French Impressionists.

On the surface, the two have more differences than similarities, which include a mutual love for painting, sunny beaches and each other's art.

Warner is a native Californian who moved to the South in the late 1960s. She moved to Bay St. Louis in 1980 with her late husband, who died shortly after they came to Cedar Point. She studied art at University of California at Berkley.

Because her husband travelled, she had lived in Turkey, Spain and various other places abroad and found she was influenced by some of the street artists she met.

"I painted with anybody I could, so I learned from everybody," she said, adding that she took some formal training after returning to the U.S.

Richards, on the other hand, is a former newspaper reporter who once worked for, among other paper, the New Orleans Item. He gave up journalism for art in 1947. For a time, he combined writing and art by drawing his own illustrations for Sunday magazines. In addition, Richards has illustrated books and he has worked as a portrait artist in the New Orleans Fishch Quarter.

He had some formal training at a Kansas City institute while working as a newspaper reporter and has done some teaching, such as a drawing class he

Texas Flat Road funding promising

A House Bill appropriating funding for improvements to the Texas Flat Road is good news to many

It has been many years since local political leaders, test facility officials and several concerned citizens began pushing for the resurfacing of the vital link to the Test Facility, which is located in Hancock County.

The Bill has passed the House with strong support from Representative J.P. Compretta and now/must pass in the Senate.

State Senator Gene Taylor has been working with local supervisors to get the bill passed and should also play a vital role in his chambers.

The $3 million funding for the bill will come from the Economic Development Highway Act and is a great step towards the estimated $4 million plus needed for the entire project.

When final approval is received from the Mississippi Legislature, the balance is scheduled to come from a Community Development Block Grant if the road is improved to meet Federal Highway Administration standards.

The late J. Norton Haas Sr. was among the early proponents for the restoration of the Texas Flat Road, which was almost abandoned with the construction of the Mississippi Test Facility in the early 1960's.

Mr. Haas and many others worked many long hours trying to secure funding for the road's restoration.

Several years ago only a small portion of the road which leads to McLeod State Park was resurfaced. The section of the road is already beginning to break up.

Local supervisors were promised funding for the road by the government if the test facility, now named John C. Stennis Space Center, got the Advanced Solid Rocket Motor as a project.

Mississippi Department of Economic Development Director J. Mac Holladay has also been very supportive of efforts to get the funding.

When the road, which serves as a transportation route for the space center employees is repaired, it will also serve as an escape route in event of an emergency. It is also a direct link between the space center and the Stennis Airport.

Coach Irvin Favre and his wife are pushing for more support from Hancock County residents for the University of Southern Mississippi's football program.

As many of you know, their son Brett is a quarterback at the University of Southern Mississippi.

USM now has a Division I standing and will be adding Alabama, TCU and Texas to their schedule this season as well as Florida State, Auburn, Tulane, MSU, Memphis State, etc.

In doing some checking, the Favres were disappointed in finding only one member of the Eagle Club in Hancock County in addition to themselves.

We know there are residents from Hancock County who have attended USM and many have children who are now students at the university in Hattiesburg.

The Favres, who are alumni of USM, feel there should be more support for the football program from Hancock County and are taking the efforts upon themselves, since the university has nothing to do with this endeavor other than supplying brochures for the Eagle Club.

Interested residents may contact Coach Favre for further information.

We seem to write a lot about our weather, yet it is important to all of us.

For some reason or the other, I have never been able to enjoy extreme weather changes, especially freezing temperatures, and last week we had some drastic changes.

One day was overcoat weather, the next a light jacket followed by shirt sleeve weather.

I am looking forward to good old summer weather.

Ground breaking ceremonies are scheduled Monday for the new Hancock County Junior-Senior High School.

The events get underway at 1:30 p.m. for the new school which is located next to the Pearl River Vo-Tech Center on Stennis Drive.

The public is invited to the ground breaking ceremonies and we hope there will be many folks in attendance.

We hope to see you there Monday.

HOMETOWN NEWS From The Capitol City

By Mississippi Reporting Service

State legislators have found a way to give themselves a 50 percent increase in their state retirement benefits, something they tried to do four years ago but were slapped down by a gubernatorial veto. Back in 1985, the Legislature passed a scheme to create special higher retirement benefits for themselves under the Public Employees 'Retirement System. No other public employees in the system would have had their benefits increased. Gov. Bill Allain, charging that lawmakers were unconstitutionally attempting to create a 'preferred status' for themselves, vetoed the bill. No attempt was made to override Allain's veto.

This time, the lawmakers put some sugar coating in a new retirement bill to make it palatable to Gov Ray Mabus, who signed it last weekend.

Legislators took special care of themselves in the bill, but tossed out some morsels for the other public servants in the system and the 120,000 workers who are retired under PERS.

Retirees were given a 5 percent increase in their monthly benefits, the first increase in years, although the PERS trust fund has grown to more than $4

The age for full retirement without reduced benefits was lowered from 65 to 60 in the bill, after 30 years of service. Also the age for retirement at reduced benefits was lowered from 60 to 55, with 25 years service.

Public employees will have to put up an additional 12 of 1 percent of their wages, and their employers an attitional 1 percent. The price tag will be $13 million cost to the state general fund a year and $7 million more from county and city governments.

The legislative retirement part of the bill, which also includes the lieutenant governor, is called a 'supplemental' retirement plan based on legislator's base salary plus per diem allowances. A legislator can qualify for retirement benefits after only four years service.

Legislators can contribute 1 1/2 percent more to the retirement fund than they are now contributing, to be matched by the state contribution. In effect, lawmakers would come out with 1 1/2 times higher benefits than other public employees.

In dollars, a legislator who now is eligible for $300 per month in retirement benefits, would see his benefits rise to $450 per month. If calculated in terms of a pay increase, legislators will be getting a 6.33 percent pay hike as a result of the retirement changes.

To come up with an esti-mated $23 million in new money to help pay for the enhanced retirement benefits, the new bill makes what is considered in actuarial circles a major change in what is called the 'unfunded liability' of the retirement fund.

It will stretch out the years of the funding liability of the retirement system from 17 1/2 years to 25 years.

In layman's language, this is like extending the time payment plan of your Sears charge account from 18 months to 2 years, with your monthly payments remaining at the same amount you've been paying.

Initiatlly, the retirement benefits had been combined with a larger measure which is termed a 'cleanup' bill dealing with the overall operation of the PERS board and a long-brewing controversy of whether or not the board is a 'state agency.'

The cleanup phase of the bill was split off into a separate measure which is still kicking around between the two legislative chambers. The PERS board, in particular its veteran executive director, Fred Walker, has objected to being regarded as a 'state agency,' contending it is a separate and district corporation.

Under the measure that is still hanging fire, the retire-ment system would be defined as 'an agency of the State of Mississippi.' But it would also be said to have the 'powers...of a public corporation.

A floor amendment put into the bill by Sen. Robert Crook of Ruleville, is said to be irritating to Walker, who carries considerable clout around the Legislature.

It requires the Legislative PEER committee to make actuarial evaluations of the retirement system and annually report to the Legislature on the 'financial soundness' of the system.

EYES ON SSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

The state's controversial charity hospitals should stay open, the Senate decreed this week. But Gov. Ray Mabus could still take the politically risky step of dooming the facilities by vetoing their funds.

Sen. Margaret Tate voted in the minority to close the facili-ties in Laurel, Vicksburg and Hattiesburg.

The House agreed with the Senate on a compromise tort reform measure that would reduce the state's statute of limitations for filing damage suits. Rep. J. P. Compretta was on the short end in opposing the mea-sure touted as an aid to economic development.

The Senate killed a plan to legalize betting on video poker machines that was projected to raise $20 million in taxes. A plan to tax telephone calls was also quashed in the upper chamber.

The two tax measures are the only proposals so far that would have supported "equity fund-Equity funding would make the amount spent on each student's education roughly equivalent, whether the child is in a poor or a wealthy school district. The idea has been approved by the Senate, but no funds have been allocated.

Churches should be exempt from paying sales tax on out-ofstate purchases as of next summer, the House agreed.

The Senate passed an $89.5 million package of capital improvements to state buildings, land and equipment. The improvements would be paid for through bonds.

A House committee nixed a Senate-passed proposal that would have allowed the state board of education to temporarily take over school districts which lose their accreditation.

The Institute for Technology Development got a $1 million appropriation from the Senate, but the high-tech agency can't spend the money until the state ITD's financial records.

Jackson's new LeFleur's Bluff State Park, formerly Riverside Park, won't have any money to operate once its $2.1 million renovation is completed in April, according to a Housepassed bill. The appropriation could be put back in by the

THE PEOPLE'S BUSINESS

From the Mississippi Economic Council

The number of business failures in the United States declined in 1988, according to a company specializing in business information.

Dunn & Bradstreet Corp. reported last week that 57,098 business failed last year compared with 61,111 in 1987. The decline of 6.6 percent represents the largest drop in the number of failures in 10 years.

These figures are a testament to the overall strength of the economy, which has experienced growth in each of the last seven years.

According to the report, the decline in failures was most evident in states with a large agricultural sector. Agriculture failures declined 51.6 percent over 1987, which experienced a large number of failures in the early month of the year.

This is especially good news in light of the tragic losses of so many family farms that occurred in the early 1980s. Failures in retail declined 6.1

percent and services bankruptcies were down 4.7 percent. Manufacturing failures decreased 1.6 percent to 4,204. Good news at a time when

Twelve aluminum boats, with tampered serial numbers and presumed stolen, were seized by Bureau of Marine Resources agents from a Gulfport scrap metal buyer last

The boats, some bearing Hancock County registrations, were discovered accidentally when an agent went to Southern Scrap Inc. to sell aluminum cans, according to agent Stanley Hamilton.

Approximately 30 more boats, damaged beyond recognition, were found at the scrap vard. The 12 seized boats are being stored at the Harrison County Sheriff's Department when the boats hit something in storage facility,, Hamilton said. A call to the scrap yard revealed that the company currently is paying approximately 60 cents per pound for the grade of metal found in aluminum boats.

The scrap company has been charged with possession of boats with altered and tampered serial numbers, he said.

According to Hamilton, the transoms (the usual serial number location) had been cut from many of the boats and holes had been punched in the bottoms.

"One reason we think they are stolen is because the holes were punched from the inside. If the holes had been made the water the holes would have been from the outside," Hamilton said.

The case is under further investigation by Bureau and Department of Wildlife and Fisheries agents, Hamilton

Anyone who has had an aluminum boat stolen or has information pertaining to the case should contact Hamilton at the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Seafood

New technology insures fresh frozen products

The frozen seafood industry has certainly come a long way since Clarence Birdseye started the frozen food industry in the early 1920's with his first product, frozen fish fillets.

cated that many seafood products are blast frozen within hours of being harvested to bring consumers that 'fresh-caught flavor.'

For instance, this is accomplished by 'at-seafreezing.' This method is done on huge ships called factory trawlers which stay at sea for months at a time catching, processing, packaging and freezing fish, in huge holds on the vessel.

The ships are designed to ensure that seafood is processed as close to the time it's caught as

Other new technology is applied in other situations. Some species, like salmon, are caught and delivered to 'tender boats' which hold the fish in recirculated chilled sea water until delivery to the

At the plant, the product is unloaded, separated by species, headed, gutted, and cleaned, then graded for quality and size and finally blast frozen or superchilled—all within hours of being caught! These new preservation methods, which control time and temperature, are the single most important factors in maintaining quality once a fish is caught.

In addition to being available fresh, farm-raised products such as catfish, trout, and salmon are taken from ponds or pens and also quickly frozen to assure consumers a fresh tasting product.

Acquaculture is a rapidly growing source of seafood worldwide and accounts for 400 million. pounds of seafood produced annually in the United

What's New In Frozen Seafood Products? From the frozen state, seafood products are transformed into a number of different end products. For instance, breaded fish sticks, portions or nuggets. These new frozen seafoods, in an effort to adapt to today's lifestyles, are made healthier with lighter breadings, new and creative toppings and stuffings that eliminate deep frying and bring out the natural good taste of fish or shellfish.

Many of these items are specifically made for the microwave oven. Below is a partial listing of the convenience foods that consumers can expect to find in their freezer case:

Why is Frozen Seafood Such a Good Catch? Convenience: fresh-frozen seafood items meet high consumer demand for ease of preparation—it cooks quickly and can be prepared by almost any cooking method.

* Economy: frozen can be less costly than fresh. There is little bone, and hardly any fat to cut away.

* Dependable consistent quality: products are blast frozen at the peak of freshness to lock in nutrients and that 'fresh-caught' flavor.

* Taste: the flavor of fish and shellfish, avail-Today, the frozen seafood industry is so sophisti- able all year long, adds excitement to meals. * Nutrition: seafood is high in protein and low in saturated fat, sodium and calories. Variety: the selection of frozen seafood is tremendous!

How to Cook Fish Using the 10-Minute Rule Timing is, all important when it comes to cooking seafood. Perfectly cooked fish is moist and has a delicate flavor; overcooked fish is dry and tasteless. The '10-minute rule' is still the best guide to cooking seafood by conventional methods. Here's how to use it:

1. Measure the fish at the thickest point. If the fish is stuffed or rolled, measure it after stuffing or rolling and time it accordingly.

2. Cook fish 10 minutes per inch, turning it halfway through the cooking time. For example, a 1-inch fish steak should be cooked 5 minutes on each side for a total of 10 minutes. Pieces of fish less than 1/2 inch thick do not have to be turned

3. Add 5 minutes to the total cooking time if you are cooking the fish in foil, or if fish is cooked in a

4. Double the cooking time for frozen fish that has not been defrosted. The 10 Minute Rule can be used for baking at (450° F), broiling, poaching, steaming, grilled and sauteing. Do not use the 10 Minute Rule in the microwave or when deep frying.

Freezer Storage Life It's best to use all frozen seafood products as soon as possible for optimal quality:-Prolonged storage life, depending on the effectiveness of your freezer, tends to affect the flavor and moisture of he products stored.

Here are some recipe suggestions developed by the NFI to get you hooked on frozen seafood.

CRAB AND SPINACH STUFFED FLOUNDER

4 (4-ounce) flounder, sole or orange roughy fillets 1 (10 ounce) package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and squeezed dry

1/4 pound crab meat, drained 4 teaspoons minced onion

3 tablespoons mayonnaise 2 teaspoons Dijon mustard

1/8 teaspoon pepper

Pat fillets dry with paper towel. Combine spinach, crab meat, onion, mayonnaise, pepper, and mustard. Spread equal amount of mixture on each fillet; roll up from narrow end in a jelly-roll fashion. Place fillets seam side down in oiled baking dish.* Cover with foil and bake at 375 degrees 13 to 18 minutes, or until fish just flakes when tested with a fork. Remove with slotted spatula to warm plates. Makes 4 servings.

Fish can be prepared to this point and refrigerated several hours before cooking.

Vo-Tech Center future rests with PRCC board

BY D.C. HARVILL

Depending on a decision to be made by the Pearl River Community College Board of Trustees, Hancock County Schools may find itself the owner of the college's vocational-technical center at Stennis Airpark, a facility the district may not be able to afford.

At a meeting last week, PRCC President Ted Alexander told the board most of the money collected for the collegethrough ad valorem taxes is spent on high school vocational centers in Hancock, Lamar and Forrest counties.

nd pep-

We're spending the equivalent of $9 on high school students for every dollar of that money we spend on college students at our Poplarville campus. And our primary purpose is the education of college students," Larry Stanford, PRCC director of public relations said Wednesday.

Due to rising salaries and benefits, Stanford said, the college has had to dedicate more and more money to the operation of the centers—money that must be diverted from programs at the main campus.

Several alternatives are being investigated by a committee appointed by the board of trustees, one of which calls for the college to turn the centers over completely to the local school districts, Stanford said.

The Hancock County Vocational-Technical Center will not be closed. Either the college or the school district will to Stanford.

Other options include the school districts taking over the center and leasing the college space for them to continue operation of post secondary classes.

The college continuing operation of the center is still an option, according to Hancock County Superintendant of Education Terrell Randolph, who also serves on the college's board of trustees.

For the 1988-89 school year, Hancock County pledged $180,000 to PRCC, but the expected expense of operating the vo-tech center is $185,678, according to figures from the college.

The college will receive approximately $950,000 in ad continue running it, according valorem tax revenue this year from six counties. The cost of operating the three centers is expected to be about $529,000. The left-over funds go to support programs at the Poplarville campus.

They are saying we could operate the center at less expense than they can, because of reimbursements to school districts from the state," Randolph said.

Based on the college's figures, the cost per student is $1063 if the college operates the center, but only $577 per student if the school district runs it, Randolph said.

Approximately 350 of the 2,000 students at PRCC's Poplarville campus are from Hancock County. About 540 high school students utilize the vo-tech center for half a day each, Stanford said.

The total cost of operation is projected to be $109,000 annually for the Hancock center if the district operates it.

"But that's $109,000 we don't have and aren't going to have for the next couple of years on the tight budget we're going to be operating under," Randolph

If the school district assumes operation of the center, Randolph said, he hopes the college will help defray the district's expenses by diverting some of the money it will be saving to the district. Hancock County School District will break ground for a new junior/senior high school adjacent to the center Monday. Stanford said the future of a $500,000 expansion program planned for the center is uncertain at this time, pending the decision of the boards.

You probably don't think about how much money your old dinosaur of a gas furnace is burn-ing. Until you get your fuel bill each month. Then you realize how inefficiently an old gas furnace heats your home. Maybe it's time you moved up to an energyefficient heat pump. It can save you up to: $150,00 annually on your energy bills in a 2000 sq. ft. home. A heat pump burns less money in the summer, too, replacing your old air conditioner as the most efficient cooling system available.

A heat pump won't burn up the moisture in the air, either, the way a gas furnace does. Heat, pumps heat more evenly, so the temperature in every room is the same temperature as the reading on your thermostat. And heat pumps run on electricity. They don't burn fuel. So you'll get cleaner, more comfortable climate control all year long. Call your Total Comfort Pledge" heating and cooling contractor for more information. Invest your money in a heat pump now. Before itall goes up in smoke.

Coleman merchants request Beach Road work assistance

BY DENA BISNETTE The Coleman Avenue Merchants Association has asked the Hancock County Board of Supervisors for assistance in repairing Beach Road, but the work probably can not be done before summer. County Engineer Larry Seal said he had discussed the matter with representatives of the association, who want to improve existing businesses on Coleman Avenue as well as attract more to Waveland's old downtown business district.

Several businesses along Coleman Avenue have closed within the last few years and, according to Seal, the association members feel the remaining businesses would benefit if Beach Road were improved from Coleman to the Buccaneer Park entrance.

The requested improvements include new blacktopping on about 3.5 miles of road, the engineer told the board Tuesday morning. He said the association's statistics indicate that Buccaneer which is known as one of the state's most profitable parks. gets about 500,000 visitors a vear: ¿ Eleana Turner, a spokesperson for the Mississippi Department of Natural Resources Public Information Office, said 432,000 people used the park between July 1, 1987 and June 30, 1988. She said 493,000 visited the previous year. Seal said the present plan for Beach Road repair does not include any work in that area until after Labor Day. Even if plans were changed, completing the work by the time the park's busiest season begins in May would not be possible. An overlay on a different section of the road has been planned for the summer, Seal said, in consideration of the increased traffic at Buccaneer. However, some preliminary levelling and rolling can probably be done to make road more

The Pearl River Basin Development District has announced that the Bogue Chitto Water Park at McComb will reopen on March 1.

The park was closed in June 1987 because of liability prob-lems. However, a new leasing agreement has been arranged which will make it possible for the park to be reopened for use by the public.

Persons interested in obtaining additional information concerning the Bogue Chitto Water Park may call the district at 354-6301 or the water park at Richards once lived in Ocean Springs, where he rented a cottage from the family of artist Walter Anderson on property that is now the site of Shearwater Pottery. He still goes there to paint and visit with old friends.

It was in Ocean Springs that he met and became friends with Warner.

Warner said she first saw an example of Richards' work in the 1970s and "thought there was a magic to it." Although she had previously collected only old paintings, not contemporary ones, she went back to purchase the painting only to find it had already been sold.

In 1981, she met one of Richards' models, a woman named Susan, in a chance encounter at a New Orleans restaurant where patrons who come in alone are seated with each other. The model invited Warner to visit her and, on that visit, gave her a drawing Richards had done as a preliminary to a painting.

Later, the model visited Warner in Bay St. Louis at the same time Richards was in Ocean Springs, and they drove over to meet him.

Richards said he enjoys painting with other people and with Warner in particular, although they do not paint the

Warner, whose favorite subjects include brightly colored beach scenes, put it her way--"It's what you see. It's your view of what life is on that beach at that particular time."

Both artists' subjects vary, but Richards said his favorite subject is the human figure. Warner said she had to beg him

Reflections On Life

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

What love becomes

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

"Love becomes mercy when it takes on the burden of others.' So said Father John Sheets. S.J. as he presented their annual retreat to the Divine Word brothers and fathers in June,

"Mercy is a miserable heart," he went on to say, translating from misericordia, the Latin word for mercy.

The truth and accuracy of these statements sink in only gradually. It takes time to realize fully just how much love becomes part and parcel of what another-human being is, thinks and feels.

We can easily expand on these thoughts by adding that love becomes compassion when we choose to suffer together with a fellow human. Compassion, of course, is a Latin world which literally means suffering with. This is a beautiful reflection of love.

Symphathy, which is the Greek equivalent of compassion, says practically the same, and empathy says it more intimately. Love, then, suffers with those who suffer and rejoices with the happy. "I love you," is such a broad statement that there is a real danger of its having no meaning unless it is pinned down to specifics. There are so many facets of love which becomes so many things that it is worth our while to examine its many splendors. What else does love become? Love becomes sensitivity when we lay open our mind and all our senses, allowing ourselves to tune in to each need, each hurt, each experience of every human being.

Upon the heels of sensitivity, love becomes generosity and sacrifice when it takes action to fulfill someone's needs without hesitating to count the cost in time, blood, sweat or tears.

Love becomes humility when it commits itself to accept oneself and all others just the way they are, with all pluses and minuses, with all negatives and positives, with all strengths and weaknesses, with all liabilities and assets.

Thus, "Love," as Paul writes, "does not put on airs; it is not snobbish. Love is never rude; it is not self-seeking." (1 Cor.

In similar fashion, love becomes tolerance when we move on from humility to admit that we are not better than anyone else, that no child, woman or man is inferior to us, and that, therefore, we should give each person much latitude and

Again, greatly related to tolerance where people are involved, love becomes patience when we resolve to slow down and to bear all the pain necessary in order to wait out the development and passing of an annoying or trying situation.

Love becomes affection and tenderness when the appreciation we have for someone overflows and bursts through the hull of logic and reason into the sparkling fountain of feelings and exuberance.

By the same token, love becomes joy when we awaken fully to the realization of what a wonderful thing it is to live in a continuous state of esteem and harmony with another and to experience the electricty of mutual feelings.

Trust is a manifestation of love so imporant that, without it, love will soon self-destruct. Love becomes trust when we decide to break the terrible bonds of jealousy which drives us to cling possessively and insanely to whatever and whomever is ours.

Love becomes power when we let down our defenses, lay open our whole person and make ourselves so vulnerable that the persons whom we love will not hesitate to repay in kind.

In short, love becomes everything good when we allow unconditionally that God. who is Love, be the Centerpiece of all our thoughts, words, actions and relations with one another.

McCandless home the site of Christ Episcopal Silver Tea

Special to the Echo

The 31st Silver Tea to be hosted by the Women of Christ Episcopal Church in Bay St. Louis is scheduled for Wednesday, April 12, from 3 to 6 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McCandless, 226 North Beach Boulevard.

The Gulf Coast public is cordially invited to attend. Donations at the door will be gratefully accepted and will be used by the Episcopal women to support many of their charitable projects, such as St Michael's Farm for Boys, the Gulf Coast home for battered women, the

Hancock Medical Center's fund for prescriptions for the needy, and Christmas parties for children from the Coast Retardation

The McCandless home is particularly appropriate as a setting for this social event since it was built on the North Beach and Carroll Avenue corner occupied by Christ Church from 1904 until its destruction by Hurricane Camille in 1969.

The present church was erected at 912 South Beach and the Carroll Avenue lot sold to Glenn Bannister and his wife Pati, the artist whose portraits of wistful young girls have won international acclaim.

According to Mr. Bannister, the house was planned to include a studio for his wife and to ensure that there was a view of the Bay from every window.

Of special interest in the present home is the portrait of Mrs. McCandless' great-grandmother, whose husband, after his service as a chaplain in the Confederate Army, became the founding rector of the first Episcopal church in Birmingham, Ala. when that city was in its infancy.

The tea is being co-chaired by
Mrs. Richard Shadoin and Mrs. Henry Fly, who request those attending to use Carroll Avenue or the North Beach shoulder of the road for parking so as to leave the traffic area clear.

All parishioners are invited to meet the incoming pastor in the parish hall after the 5 p.m. Vigil Mass Saturday and the 9:30 a.m. Mass Sunday at St. Ann Church.

Beginning March 4, St. Ann's Vigil Mass will be 5 p.m. each week until next Fall.

Confirmation class is this Saturday, March 4 in the parish hall before the Vigil Mass.

Mamie O'Quinn, Altar Society president, presiding over the February meeting of St. Ann-St. John Altar Society in the parish hall last Wednesday, appointed Carolyn Crassel Easter Cake chairlady. The annual cake sale will be held before and after all masses Easter Saturday and Easter Sunday. For further information or for ordering a cake call Carolyn at 467-4694.

For the month of March Shirley Williams will be in charge of the Offertory Procession during the Saturday Vigit Mass.

EDUCATION NOTES

Kolodziej attends Presidential Classroom

Kaaren Kolodziej, a junior at Our Lady Academy in Bay St. Louis, recently witnessed the federal decision-making process in action as a participant in Presidential Classroom's 1989 Senior High School program in Washingtin, D.C.

Kaaren joined 331 high school juniors and seniors, representing 31 states, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, and Argentina, Hong Kong, Honduras and Seoul. The students spent a week meeting with lead-

DAR names Ladner state's outstanding history teacher

Cheri McCook Ladner, teacher of American History and American Government at Long Beach High School, was chosen by the Friendship Oak Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution as Outstanding Teacher of American History.

She was subsequently named district and state winner of this honor and will be among contenders for the national title at the annual DAR convention in Washington, D.C. in April.

Mrs. Ladner, who earned bachelor's and master's degrees in social studies education from the University of Southern Mississippi, was among the first women to win an athletic scholarship to Perkinston Junior College. She has taught American History and American Government at Long Beach High School for 10 years, and her class for seniors is so popular that students come to class at 7:10 a.m. in order to participate.

Twice a year Ladner launches a big project involving all the students in the school, during which she particularly tries to teach good citizenship. Last fall Ladner led the students in organizing a mock presidential race, with students playing parts covering all aspects of the election from campaigning, registration of voters (when 75 seniors were actually registered), to voting with authentic voting machines.

The spring project is coordinated with the Student Council as part of 'Pride Week,' and there will be a 'Pride in Your Country, State and City Day' this year.

Enrichment of her classes includes talks by veterans, naturalized Americans, lawyers, and visits to live courtroom situations.

According to a DAR spokesman, "Ladner has exhibited excellent and innovative teaching abilities and unflagging enthusiasm for her chosen subject. She truly merits the state title of 'Outstanding Teacher of' American History.

USM flag football teams win national recognition

Two University of Southern Mississippi flag football teams won national recognition for their performances during a recent national collegiate flag football championship tournament in New Orleans.

The teams were honored at a Feb. 17 reception on the USM campus for their efforts during the four-day December tourney, hosted by the University of New Orleans as part of the U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty (USF&G) Company's Sugar Bowl-week festivities.

The USM men's team, dubbed "Salt 'N Pepper," won the 10th National Invitational Flag Football Tournament Dec. 31 against what Steve Rey, USM associate director of intramurals and team coach, called "the toughest schedule in the history of the tournament"-playing seven games in four days. ..

There are three categories of intramural team competition: men, women and co-rec

The USM co-rec (male and female members) team placed fifth among 22 teams nationally in stiff competition, losing only their first game, according to Co-rec team member Chris Hale of Baxterville was named to the All-America squad.

What is it? It's riprap, the broken rock piled around bridge abutments, shorelines, and dams to add support and provide bank stabilization. Some larger lakes may have miles of riprap while others may have only a few vards of it, but it's always worth

"Riprap provides prime structure and cover for bass because it is nearly always near deep water," explains Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member Linda England, who credits riprap with several of her national tournament victories.

The rocks are put in place to help break the current and protect the shoreline," says England, "and the first thing that happens is that moss and algae start growing there and attracting minnows. The minnows attract larger fish, which in turn bring in still larger predators, particularly largemouth, spotted and small mouth bass.

"These fish often station themselves around bends or points where the rocks provide ambush areas. The bass dart out and hit a minnow or crayfish moving by with the current, then zip back to the calmer, protected water around the rocks. cafeteria for the fish because food is always present."

England's favorite lures for riprap include topwater propeller-type lures, crankbaits and plastic worms. She fishes each of them specific ways, depending on the conditions.

"In the summer and early autumn months when riprap is really at its best," she notes, "I begin my early morning fishing with a topwater propeller lure. I cast as close to the riprap as possible, throwing against the current so my retrieve will bring the lure back with the natural flow of the water.

Mobile Yacht Club hosts

Dauphin Island Race

"Actually, there really isn't much of a retrive with the prop bait. I cast, then let it sit there completely motionless. The first movement I make is a single twitch with the rod tip so the lure sends out a few ripples.

Then I let it sit there again. "Next, I begin moving it with a series of slow twitches until the lure is about five feet away from the rocks. For a topwater lure around riprap, this is just about the limit of the productive strike zone and if I haven't had a strike, I reel in and make another cast."

Once topwater action slows, which usually occurs an hour or so after full sunrise, England recommends switching to a deep-diving, long-billed crank-bait. She likes the long bill because it helps keep the lure's treble hooks from snagging. The bill also pushes the lure right down into the rocks.

"The retrive I like best," says the well-known Johnson Outboards pro, "is one that bounces and richochets the lure off the rocks. It's very erratic and fast, and it draws reaction strikes.'

For this type of fishing, England recommends fishing parallel to the riprap, working a basic depth range of five feet or less. She likes to cast across any corners of the riprap, or around any additional structure present such as logs, and she concentrates primarily on the upstream side of the rocks.

'Sometimes a stop and go The riprap is like a constant retrieve also works well with a crankbait," England explains. Just reel the lure down fast, let it crash into a rock, then suddenly stop reeling. Pause for a second or two, then begin reeling again. It's surprising how many strikes occur just after you start moving the lure again."

On clear, sunny days England also suggests fishing a 1/8-cunce lead head hook and six-pound test line. With this, she fishes six to reight foot depths, slowly but steadily

She's looking for those fish that have moved out to the slightly deeper water for more protection from the sun or waves. She often finds larger fish here, too.

"Not all riprap is identical," England emphasizes, "and the structure below the water is not always what it appears to be from the surface. It's important to study riprap with a depthfinder, because there may be an underwater shelf, a huge pile of boulders, or even a roadbed down there that can really concentrate the fish.

I believe for the most part bass simply stay around riprap and wait for baitfish to come past. Early and late each day the bass probably patrol the rocks a little more actively in search of prey. This is why riprap fishing can be productive all day.

"Casting a topwater plug, crankbait or worm into the rocks is like adding another dish to the menu."

Bay Soccer League boasts three undefeated teams

Bay Area Youth Soccer has now completed over two-thirds of the spring season.

After six weeks of league competition, three teams in the Under-8 to Under-12 divisions remain undefeated, and have each clinched the position to be one of the two teams from their division to earn the right to go to district playoffs.

The Under-10 Rotary Falcons, and the Under-8 Sweepers are leading their divisions, undefeated, and have not been tied by a team.

The Under-12 Hurricanes are leading their division with three wins and one tie. The remaining teams must now battle it out to determine the other team in each division to go to district playoffs to be held in

Under-12 In Under-12, the Burger King Whoppers defeated McDonald Realty 1-0. The Whopper goal was scored by Jerry Peo-ples. The game was a thrilling

In Under-10 play, Coach Flowers' Rotary Falcons defeated Coach Demboski's Jaguars team by a score of 3-1, in a thrilling game played by both teams. Forward Paul Campo scored the three Falcon goals, with excellent assistance and passing from forwards David Flowers and Jason Chiniche. Halfbacks Michael Flowers, Oliver Arce and Mark Gagnon gave excellent center support along with defensive halfback Beau Develle.

The strong Falcon defense was led by goalkeeper Mike Mancuso with Patrick Kim-brell, Ben Guy and Michael Gil-

The Falcon defense held the Jaguars to just one goal. Coach Demboski congratulated Cooper Ladner for his fine goal made against the Falcons.

Coach Flowers compli-mented the Falcons for excellent team play in one of the best games played this year.

After their scheduled league game, the Jaguars traveled to Picayune and played two more games that afternoon. The Jaguars defeated the Picayune Raiders by a score of 11-3 and tied the Picayune Strikers by a score of 1-1.

The Bay Rats played another good-game that ended in a 1-1 tie with Coach Jerry Peoples' Bad Blues. It was the third tie this season for the Bay Rats. Coach Foster congratulated the entire team for a fine defensive effort and Brantley Ladner for scoring the Bay Rats' goal.

Under-8

In Under-8 play, Coach Steve Carver's Sweepers and Coach Christine Ross' Raiders traveled to Northeast Jackson for a tournament, and thus did not play in league competition this week.

Their regular league game will be made up at a later date. Coach Timmy Kingston's Chargers defeated coach Jimmy Rutherford's Stingers by a score of 7-2.

In other afternoon Under-8 play, Coach Carron's Tornados tied Coach Ginn's Wildcats by a score of 1-1, in another fine defensive game. The Raiders and the Stingers are scheduled to play a make-up game this Thursday, weather permitting.

The Mississippi State Bulldogs close out the 1988-89 regular season this week when they host the Kentucky Wildcats on Saturday, March 4.

Mississippi State enters the week with a 12-13 overall record, 6-10 in SEC action, after splitting a pair of home contects this past week. The Bulldogs dropped a 78-69 decision to the Florida Gators Feb. 22 and then rebounded with a 74-69 victory over the Ole Miss Rebels this past Saturday at Humphrey Coliseum. MSU has now won three of its last four games.

Gumbo!

Hancock chefs prepare Cajun repast for 1,000

BY JANET MCQUEEN

The traveling gumbo show once again descended upon the Capital City, bringing a taste of Mississippi to Washington. Approximately 1,000 persons including Senators, Congressmen, Bush administration representatives and native Mississippians enjoyed shrimp gumbo, chicken gumbo and potato salad prepared by 18 Hancock County residents.

With 225 pounds of shrimp, 50 pounds of chicken, 35 pounds of sausage, 10 gallons of roux and miscellaneous seasonings in tow, the group traveled to Washington, D. C. in two motor homes February 22.

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Breaux of Kiln coordinated the 10th annual journey to the "Mississippi Gumbo Festival Fais Do-Do" held in the cafeteria of the Longworth House Office Building.

Joint sponsors were Senator and Mrs. Trent Lott, Congressman and Mrs. Larkin Smith, the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation, Electric Power Associations of Mississippi and the citizens of Hancock County.

"The gumbo festival is a terrific opportunity for Mississippi to showcase its good seafood, great cooks and warm hospitality for official-Washington," said Congressman Smith. "I got a lot of compliments from my colleagues in the House on the gumbo. I can tell you from the crowd of people we served, that there had to be a lot of empty restaurants in Washington on gumbo night."

Jeannette Breaux remarked that the gumbo fans have to be repeatedly reminded that they are not eating "stew" as they insist on calling it. "They think Cajun food is supposed to be hot", she said, "So this year we gave them their wish by spicing up the chicken gumbo with the hottest sausage we could find. The cold, rainy weather failed to deter early arrivals, who formed a line at least a half hour before the cafeteria doors opened. Guests were entertained by the Marine Band, who played Dixieland and patriotic music throughout the evening.

The chefs, who "go simply to have a good time", toured the White House and the Capitol and other points of interest following the festival.

"This is one of the most anticipated events in Washington each year, and I'm proud to join Sen. Lott in keeping what is now a decade-long tradition going," Congressman Smith said. "The opportunity for them to visit with members of Congress and President Bush's administration is a real plus for the State of Mississippi. A lot of Washingtonians who have not experienced Southern cooking now can say they've had at least one good meal since this Congress convened.

BACK TO NATURE

Hummingbird migration marks early Spring

BY LYDIA SCHULTZ

The days slip by so quickly from one month to another, from one season to another. Once again I find myself awed that here is yet another

Spring.

As I take my daily walks, when the days are not frigid, there is definitely Spring activity going on. Last week before 'the cold snap,' the Carolina Wrens were busy in two spots in my yard: one was once again attempting to build a nest in the lamp of the fan on the porch.

Last year that selection thrilled me. It seemed so safe, so wise, so protected. Yet it was a sad failure. Maybe this year will be better.

The other pair was busily going in and out of the shed in the back yard. I put the lint from the dryer outside in hopes that they'd find it. Even it I'd not heard the news about the frigid air approaching, I could've guessed something The bird activity at the feeders had increased tremendously and the busiest feeder of all was the one with suet and peanut butter. I suppose they were trying to get some fat stored up. This particular clue to the eminent weather changes has always fascinated me and never failed. How do the birds know the weather change is approaching? This morning (before the chill) as I was watching my birds, I looked at the humming-bird plants rather forlornly. I know within a matter of hours that many of them would be black and wilted. My head told me that this was okay. They'd grow back.

But they had produced so profusely throughout the Winter and the Buff-bellied Hummingbird which is still in the yard has really enjoyed

I had, also, enjoyed seeing the yard in full bloom through what is supposed to be cold days. As I watched, something caught my eye. It couldn't be a Ruby-throated Hummingbird! February 22 is just too eary for migratory Rubythroats. But it was. My binoculars in hand yielded one female sitting there.

Two minutes later as I tried to find her I saw another! A male Ruby-throated Hummer! How exciting!

The Buff-bellied Hummer, which is usually a belligerent bird and not too tolerant of others, was most hospitable. Besides sharing the plants, he shared the feeders. I decided to add more feeders to the yard. If there were two here, there may be others approaching.

The next morning dawned cold with the coldest to come that night. It was interesting to note that the female hummer was gone but the male was still around.

Females do generally move more quickly during migration, but it's rare to see a female this early. Males precede the females by several

That night the male hummingbird spent the night low to the ground in one of the hummingbird plants. He was three feet below a feeder, 18 inches off the ground and two feet from the house. I figured he was getting the heat radiating from both the ground and the house.

He stayed several days and then moved on, to be replaced by yet a couple others. This has been quite interesting to see migration start so early. Reports from customers have been coming in about the Purple Martins. This bird is billed as 'America's Favorite Bird,' but I must say I think it runs neck and neck with Bluebirds and Hummers. Anyway, some are back from South America. Very few are in the houses but I've had a couple people say that they are. These are the old, well established colonies. If Robins are also few and far between. Don't ask me why. There are several reasons and I feel that it is too early to guess or make statements. Another year or two may have to pass before we will know for sure.

I did see my first mob of Cedar Waxwings yesterday on the way to work. Made my day! So the days will pass into Spring. It brings so much enjoyment to watch the birds. Somehow there is comfort in the continuity they bring to the yard—their yard.

Gray tells BHS history class tales of African culture

By Christopher Heaps BHS Correspondent

Charles Gray, president of the Hancock County Historical Society, recently spoke to Bay High's world history class. He told about his travels throughout the continent of Africa to the group of 26, which is under the direction of Mrs. Joan Thomas.

"The cultures are so varied from one end of the continent to the other," commented Gray at the beginning of his nearly onehour presentation.

Gray then went on to describe his travels city by city. He entered Africa at the Egyptian port city of Alexandria, journeyed around the vast continent and finally came back to Egypt. Throughout his travels, Gray marveled at the many wonders of Africa. "They're incredible," said

Gray when speaking about the pyramids. He also saw such wonders as the Casbaar, Tabletop Mountain in Capetown, South Africa, and a large rhinoceros which mistook his rented Mercedes for another rhino and rammed the auto for about 45 minutes. Needless to say, the car was demolished, but Gray, who was in the auto at the time, was unhurt.

Throughout his presentation, Gray emphasized the great contrast between the modern and the ancient. Perhaps the best example of that contrast, he said, was the time when he stayed in a Hilton Hotel which was constructed next to a village of mud huts.

Another great contrast is the diversity in cultures, with over 1,000 languages being spoken on the continent of Africa.

Gray was born in Waynesboro, Miss. and began traveling when in the Army. He is now a member of the Century Club, which means he has had his passport stamped in over 100 countries—159 to be exact. Gray came to Bay St. Louis in 1984 and says our town is the kindest and gentlest place I have ever known."

Under his administration, Gray has raised the membership of the Hancock County Historical Society from 31 to 182 members. He urged all students to travel if they get the chance. He was asked to speak to the class by sophomore Michelle

OPEN LETTER

TO THE PARENTS OF JUNIOR AND SENIOR HIGH STUDENTS

Dear Parents:

Drug use is rapidly becoming rampant across the nation. You and I can't cure the drug problems of the nation, but a major, sustained crackdown shall immediately occur in the schools of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School System.

The system is implementing the following measures effective immediately:

- 1. Unannounced inspection of lockers.
- 2. Unannounced drug checks by drug-sensitive dogs.
- 3. Unannounced checks by drug-sensitive dogs of all vehicles parked on school campuses. The part that the property of the first of the
- 4. Unannounced personnel searches of persons suspected of possessing drugs.
- 5. The filing of trespass charges against all unauthorized persons on school campuses.
- 6. The recommendation for expulsion from school for anyone possessing drugs either on s person in his locker, or in his vehicle.
- 7. The filing of maximum criminal charges against anyone with drugs on his person, in his locker, or in his vehicle.
- 8. The use of information from undercover agents to expel from school and incarcerate persons possessing drugs.
- 9. The recommendation to parents/guardians that students exhibiting drug-related behavior be tested for drugs in the bloodstreams and urine.
- 10. The establishment of a confidential reward system to reward those who report persons using and/or possessing drugs.
- 11. The filing of criminal neglect charges against parents/guardians who knowingly allow their children to use or possess drugs.
- 12. The filing of charges of accessory before the fact, accessory to the fact, and/or accessory after the fact against all students suspected of knowing the specifics of drug deals.
- 13. The commissioning (deputizing) of selected school personnel so that appropriate arrests of drug users, drug possessors, and trespassers may expeditiously occur.

The majority of our students despise drugs and their users. In order to make certain that your child is protected from drug activity, please do the following:

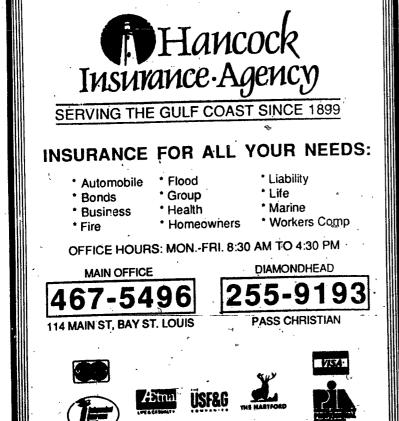

- 1. Talk to your child about drug use.
- 2. Make certain that your child knows to keep only his books and materials in his school locker.
- 3. Remind your child that he must keep his school locker locked, and no other student should have a key or combination to the locker.
- 4. If your child drives a vehicle to school, it must be locked at all times.
- 5. If other students ride in your child's vehicle, then anything left in the vehicle (drugs) will be considered to belong to the owner of the vehicle.
- 6. If your child associates with drug users then he along with the dopers will be closely monitored and, given just cause, will be subject to searches.
- 7. Call the school if you know the names of student drug dealers and users. Do not give

Some of you may consider these measures to be drastic. They are! Sometimes extreme measures are needed to stem a growing problem.

If you know another way-a better way to lessen this problem-please let me know.

Sincerely,

Roger D. Oge', Superintendent Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District

Tanke: spills 1

BY D.C. HARVILL Both lanes of Interstate 10 near the Louisiana border wer closed for five and-a-half hour Thursday night after a tanke truck sprang a leak, spilling noxious-smelling, hazardou material.

At about 8:30 p.m. Ro Shubert, an officer of the Mis sissippi Tax Commission o duty at the west-bound truc scales on the interstate, calle the Hancock County Sheriff Department saying a tanke had ruptured while its tracto was being changed, according to Sheriff Ronnie Peterson. While the Interstate wa closed, traffic was routed alon U.S. 90, according to Peterson In addition to sheriff's per sonnel, the Mississippi High way Patrol, and the Mississipp Bureau of Pollution Contr were called in to assist with cor
